Interview:

Q1: What are you going to school for?

1. I'm going to school at Binghamton University for my bachelor's in psychology. I plan on continuing on to do a master's in counseling or social work, whichever I decide will work better for my goal of wanting to be a therapist working with clients one on one.

Q2: What do you enjoy doing in your free time?

In my free time I love to play video games like Pokémon and Overwatch. I love listening to music and writing action/adventure and sci-fi. I also enjoy spending time with my friends, as well as going to the gym and swimming.

Q3: What have you done for work?

In my time I have had a handful of jobs, most of which were in grocery stores or fast food. My favorite was working as a clerical in the Office of Temporary and Disability Assistance, as it was what had a hand in reigniting my passion for helping people and led to me returning to school.

Q4: What is your goal after your studies?

My goals once I am done with my bachelors is to move to Florida to be closer to some family, get a job, and eventually continue my studies. After I am completely done with school, I hope to be able to jump into a counseling career and start to settle down.

Q5: What have you accomplished so far?

When it comes to academic accomplishments, I have gotten an Associate in Science and Individual Studies from SUNY Broome and am currently in my senior year of my bachelor's in psychology. I have received scholarships due to my high grades. Other accomplishments include singing with my high school choral group on the stage of Carnegie Hall in New York City as well as succeeding in quite a lot of self-discovery, as I have dealt with much throughout my life.

Q6: Do you have any pets?

I have a cat named Dexter. He is a big, long, furry cat that I believe is a Maine Coon, I'm not quite sure, as he was a rescue with a funny story of how it happened. Long story short, SUNY Broome has a high population of stray cats around and Dexter jumped out of someone's arms and into mine, effectively choosing me instead of me choosing him.

Q7: Where have you lived?

I was born in Kokomo, Indiana and lived there for around a year and a half before my parents moved to New York. I lived in Owego, New York for quite some time, before my parents had a new home built in Endicott, New York, where I had spent the rest of my childhood. I now currently reside in an apartment with my mother and younger brother, still in Endicott.

Q8: What are you passionate about?

I am passionate about mental health and improving mental health awareness and accessibility to help. Unfortunately, mental health has had a massive stigma around it for many years and though we have definitely improved as a society over time, we still have a long way to go.

Q9: How many brothers and or sisters do you have?

I have three brothers and sisters: one younger brother and two younger stepsiblings, one being a sister and the other being a brother.

Q10: What is your fondest memory?

My fondest memory is probably walking on the beach with my mother at around four in the morning. No one else was around, the moon and stars were out and clear, and the sounds of the ocean was calming. My mother and I just strolled slowly while talking about life, as if the world around us was on pause for a bit, all of this culminated into a scenario that I can only describe as “absolute serenity”.

Biography

This BioSite is dedicated to my brother, Nick Dorrington, he's currently working on his bachelor's degree in Psychology at Binghamton University. He attained his Associates in Science and Individual Studies at the Community College of Suny Broome, and he looks to continue to work towards his master's in social work, or Counseling.

Nick has accomplished much in his life, he has received a multitude of scholarships due to his academic achievements, and has been many honor's programs, and during High School he was a part of his school's choral group and performed on the stage of Carnegie Hall in New York City.

His goal is to eventually work in the area of counseling, and eventually open his own facility, or at least, his own practice as a psychologist, therapist, or as a social worker. He currently lives in Upstate New York in the small town of Endicott and is hopeful to follow the rest of our family down to Florida near Tampa. As one can imagine, Nick is extremely passionate about the state of the world, specifically helping people with mental health issues, and wants to improve access and awareness.

Nick was born in the state of Indiana in a small town named Kokomo north of Indianapolis, he ended up living there for around 2-3 years before his parents moved back to New York, there, he lived in Owego, New York, in which he lived for quite some time, until a new house was eventually built in Apalachin, New York, he spent the rest of his childhood there eventually gaining a stepbrother and sister through divorce. Eventually went to reside in an apartment in the Endicott area.

He currently likes to spend time with his close friends and family, spending his free time doing his hobbies of video games, specifically playing Pokémon, and Overwatch, he also enjoys listening to music, and is an avid writer. He has a cat named Dexter, he is a large furry Maine Coon, and he was rescued while Nick was going for his associates degree, with Dexter actually jumping into his arms.

He has worked multiple jobs during his time, most of which were jobs in retail, however, his favorite was when he worked a clerical job in the Office of Temporary and Disability Services, which reinforced the idea and passion behind wanting to help people, and thus led to him continuing his studies.

His fondest memory in life so far was when he was on a vacation, and he and his mother went out for a walk in the middle of the night, and strolled along the beach, he could see everything, including the moon, the stars. The sound of the ocean really resonated with him, and led him to always remember the surreal experience that felt like "absolute serenity".
